Hallelujah

Why, when I was born, just like anyone else
Does each day, seem to be, more difficult than for others
I know that life should be fair, we all breath the same air
So why, should it be, that we receive unequally

You are good, you deserve, just believe
You are me, I am you, you are me
While we seem, to be far, we are near
You are good, you deserve, do not fear

Hallelujah , you are precious to me
Hallelujah, in your eyes I can see
Hallelujah, all the goodness you hold
Focus on the good you are told

Hallelujah , you are precious to me
Hallelujah, in your eyes I can see
Hallelujah, all the goodness you hold
Focus on the good you are told

Still it seems so hard to let go of all the pain
I have tried to trust but I'm knocked back with each gain
You say that patience will show, the positives will soon grow
Still, I have doubt, and feel I'm being left out

You are good, you deserve, just believe
You are me, I am you, you are me
While we seem, to be far, we are near
You are good, you deserve, do not fear

Hallelujah , you are precious to me
Hallelujah, in your eyes I can see
Hallelujah, all the goodness you hold
Focus on the good you are told

I hope that you are right
I promise I will fight
And work to move ahead
With all the good that I am fed

Hallelujah , you are precious to me

Hallelujah, in your eyes I can see
Hallelujah, all the goodness you hold
Focus on the good you are told

Hallelujah , you are precious to me
Hallelujah, in your eyes I can see
Hallelujah, all the goodness you hold
Focus on the good you are told
